OPEN ENDED WORKING GROUP ON AGEING

RESOLUTIONS AND BACKGROUND

This report outlines the important steps that the UN and others have taken to establish the OEWGA, while also emphasizing that there is much more work to be done.
Foreword

Discrimination based on age violates the basic human rights of older people and continues to be tolerated around the world. This is of particular concern when considering the world’s ageing population, with people aged 60 and older expected to reach 2.1 billion by 2050.

Established in 2010, the OEWGA is a UN working group with the purpose of strengthening the protection of the human rights of older people around the world. IFA UN Representative Frances Zainoeddin has put together a clear and thorough summary of the history, resolutions and actions of the OEWGA. This report is without a doubt a ground-breaking snapshot of history which has been in a haze for many organizations and authorities in the effort to find ways to push forward and engage with member states to advocate for the rights of older people.

This report provides evidence to urge governments resistant to mandating a Convention on the rights of older people to better understand the history and steps taken to strengthen the rights of older people. As the IFA and global partners work to promote a convention on the rights of older people, it is our hope that this document provides background and context to this important movement.

Sincerely,
Dr Jane Barratt
Secretary General, International Federation on Ageing
IFA at the United Nations

The International Federation on Ageing (IFA) began operations in 1973 at a time when governments and civil society around the world were only beginning to understand population ageing trends. The IFA was one of the first organizations to call for a World Assembly on Ageing and after the first was held in Vienna in 1982, the IFA emerged as an NGO with a strong voice for the ageing population at the United Nations (UN).

At the second World Assembly on Ageing, held in Madrid in 2002, IFA’s main UN representative at the time, Ms Helen Hamlin worked together with other IFA representatives and members of civil society to inform the development and adoption of the UN Madrid International Plan of Action on Ageing (MIPAA). This marked a turning point in how the world addresses the challenge of building a society for all ages.

IFA obtained General Consultative status with the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) in 1995 and has formal working relations with several UN agencies, including the World Health Organization (WHO). IFA has been deeply involved in the drafting of key initiatives at the UN, perhaps most notably, the UN Principles of Older Persons, advocating vigorously for older persons to be recognized in the Sustainable Development Goals and projecting and maintaining a strong voice on how best to protect the human rights of older persons globally.

A major focus in recent times has been supporting the agenda for a UN Convention on the Rights of Older People to protect the human rights of older persons. This isn’t as easy as it sounds, as much work must be done to inform and educate all governments as well as civil society around the world of the serious issues facing older persons that deserve special attention. Older people all have the potential to have their rights denied or access to services limited, however environments that enable them to maximize their health and wellbeing require strategic and coordinated efforts.

As a response to the growing global threat of inequity, the Open-Ended Working Group on Ageing (OEWGA) was established by the General Assembly by resolution 65/182 on 21 December 2010. The working group considers the existing international framework of the human rights of older persons, identifying possible gaps and determining how best to address them, including by considering, as appropriate, the feasibility of further instruments and measures.
History

At the time of the adoption of the Universal Declaration on Human Rights in 1948, the question of the rights of older persons was first raised by Argentina, but the matter was referred to the Economic and Social Council.

Ageing issues continued to be addressed by the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and in 1982 at the first World Assembly on Ageing, the Vienna International Plan of Action on Ageing was adopted. In 1990, the General Assembly, in its resolution 45/106, designated 1 October as International Day for the Elderly (subsequently changed to International Day for Older Persons). In 1991, the General Assembly, in its resolution 46/91, adopted the Principles for Older Persons, encouraging Governments to incorporate five basic principles into their national programmes whenever possible (independence, participation, care, self-fulfillment, dignity).

In 1992, in its resolution 47/5, the General Assembly adopted the Proclamation on Ageing, and decided to observe 1999 as the International Year of Older Persons “in recognition of humanity’s demographic coming of age and the promise it holds for maturing attitudes and capabilities in social, economic, cultural and spiritual undertakings, not least for global peace and development in the next century”.

The Madrid International Plan of Action on Ageing (MIPAA) was endorsed by the General Assembly in its resolution 57/2002. The MIPAA focused on three priority areas: older persons and development; advancing health and well-being into old age; and ensuring enabling and supportive environments.

The above programmes of action and resolutions are “soft law” and are not binding.

In response to General Assembly resolution 63/151 in 2008, by which it requested the Secretary-General to submit a report on implementation of that resolution, including information on the promotion and protection of human rights as they pertain to older persons, the Secretary-General submitted his report (A/64/7) in which he concluded that despite the existence of both policy and legal documents, the human rights of older persons have not been adequately promoted or protected.

The following year, the Secretary-General submitted another report (A/65/157) that pointed out that civil society and public opinion have increasingly addressed the issue of older persons through a human rights perspective, advocating for a comprehensive international instrument to protect the rights of older persons. In a second report (A/65/158) submitted to the General Assembly that year, the Secretary-General, in assessing implementation of MIPAA, also drew attention to empowering older persons and promoting their rights. The General Assembly, in its resolution 65/182 of 21 December 2010, took note of those two reports and decided to establish an open-ended working group.
Resolutions

Outlined below are all of the resolutions to date concerning mandate of the Open-Ended Working Group on Ageing (OEWGA), adopted by the General Assembly.

2010  A/RES/65/182: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing:
OP 28 – “Decides to establish an open-ended working group, open to all States Members of the United Nations, for the purpose of strengthening the protection of the human rights of older persons by considering the existing international framework of the human rights of older persons and identifying possible gaps and how best to address them, including by considering, as appropriate, the feasibility of further instruments and measures, and request the Secretary-General to provide all necessary support within existing resources for the duration of its mandate;”

2011  A/RES/66/127: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing:
OP 33 – “Invites States and relevant bodies and organizations of the United Nations system, including relevant human rights mandate holders and treaty bodies and the regional commissions, as well as inter-governmental and relevant non-governmental organizations with an interest in the matter, to continue to make contributions to the work entrusted to the Open-ended Working Group, as appropriate;”

2012  A/RES/67/143: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing:
OP 34 – “Invites States and relevant bodies and organizations of the United Nations system, including relevant human rights mandate holders and treaty bodies and the regional commissions, as well as inter-governmental and relevant non-governmental organizations with an interest in the matter, to continue to make contributions to the work entrusted to the Working Group, as appropriate;”

A/RES/67/139: Towards a comprehensive and integral international legal instrument to promote and protect the rights and dignity of older persons:
OP 2 – “Requests the Working Group to present to the General Assembly, at the earliest possible date, a proposal containing, inter alia, the main elements that should be included in an international legal instrument to promote and protect the rights and dignity of older persons, which are not currently addressed sufficiently by existing mechanisms and therefore require further international protection;”

This resolution was controversial and was subject to a vote – 54 yes, 5 no (Canada, Israel, Seychelles, South Sudan, USA), and 118 abstentions.
2013  A/RES/68/134: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing:
OP 45 – “Invites States and relevant bodies and organizations of the United Nations system, including relevant human rights mandate holders and treaty bodies and the regional commissions, as well as intergovernmental and relevant non-governmental organizations with an interest in the matter, to continue to make contributions to the work entrusted to the Working Group, as appropriate;”

2014  A/RES/69/146: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing:
OP 46 – “Calls upon Member States to continue to contribute to the work of the Working Group, in particular by presenting concrete proposals, practical measures, best practices and lessons learned that will contribute to promoting and protecting the rights and dignity of older persons, in order to enable it to fulfil its mandate;”

2015  No resolution on follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing. However, under the Third Committee item for human rights, the following resolution was adopted:

A/RES/70/164: Measures to enhance the promotion and protection of the human rights and dignity of older persons:
OP 11 – “Encourages Member states to continue to contribute to the work of the Open-ended Working Group, in particular by presenting measures to enhance the promotion and protection of the human rights and dignity of older persons, such as best practices, lessons learned and possible content for a multilateral legal instrument, as appropriate, in order to enable it to fulfil its existing mandate;”

2016  A/RES/71/164: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing:
OP 45 – “Encourages Member states to continue to contribute to the work of the Open-ended Working Group, in particular by presenting measures to enhance the promotion and protection of the human rights and dignity of older persons, such as best practices, lessons learned and possible content for a multilateral legal instrument, as appropriate, in order to enable it to fulfil its existing mandate of strengthening the protection of the human rights of older persons and identifying possible gaps and how best to address them, including by considering, as appropriate, the feasibility of further instruments and measures.”

2017  A/RES/72/144: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing:
OP 51 – “Encourages Member states to continue to contribute to the work of the Open-ended Working Group, in particular by presenting measures to enhance the promotion and protection of the human rights and dignity of older persons, such as best practices, lessons learned and possible content for a multilateral legal instrument, as appropriate, in order to enable it to fulfil its existing mandate of strengthening the protection of the human rights of older persons and identifying possible gaps and how best to address them, including by considering, as appropriate, the feasibility of further instruments and measures.”

2018 A/RES/73/143: Follow-up to the Second World Assembly on Ageing: OP 50 – “Encourages Member states to continue to contribute to the work of the Open-ended Working Group, in particular by presenting measures to enhance the promotion and protection of the human rights and dignity of older persons, such as best practices, lessons learned and possible content for a multilateral legal instrument, as appropriate, in order to enable it to fulfil its existing mandate of strengthening the protection of the human rights of older persons and identifying possible gaps and how best to address them, including by considering, as appropriate, the feasibility of further instruments and measures.”

This resolution also included the OEWGA on the Organization’s official calendar of conferences and meetings, with interpretation services.

Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights

In 2012, the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights submitted a report (E/2012/51) concerning the human rights situation of older persons, including an analysis of existing international instruments and gaps in the protection regime.

The High Commissioner concluded that:
“Current arrangements at the national and international level to protect the human rights of older persons are inadequate. Dedicated measures to strengthen the international protection regime for older persons are called for without further delay. Member States should explore various measures, including a new dedicated international instrument, a new special procedure mandate under the auspices of the Human rights Council, and mainstreaming the human rights of older persons throughout existing mechanisms, policies and programmes.”

Independent Expert

In 2013 the Human Rights Council, having taken note of the report of the Secretary-General (A/67/188) which, inter alia, explored the key challenges faced by older persons in the enjoyment of their human rights, the reports of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (E/2012/51) and A/HRC/24/25 which concluded that a number of human rights issues that are particularly relevant to older persons have not been given sufficient attention, decided to appoint an independent expert on the enjoyment of all human rights by older persons (HRC resolution 24/20).
The Independent Expert’s three-year term began in 2014 and has been renewed through to 2019 after presentation of their final report of their term.

The Human Rights Council requested the Secretary-General to ensure that the reports of the Independent Expert are brought to the attention of the OEWGA.

The reports prepared by the Independent Expert thus far are:

Key Discussions

The OEWGA, from its inception, convened panels to discuss ageing issues (see Appendix I). Each of its reports includes a Chair’s summary (not a negotiated text).

- 2013 In response to General Assembly resolution 67/13 of 20 December 2012, the OEWGA received proposals for possible “main elements” that could be included in a convention. No agreement reached (see Appendix II). Announcement of formation of Group of Friends of Older Persons.

- 2016 At the 7th session of the OEWGA, decided to invite national human rights institutions to participate in its work.

  At the same session, the Chair listed, on the basis of discussions, 14 issues that “need to be better addressed by the international community in order to allow older persons to fully enjoy their human rights” (see Appendix III). The two focus areas selected for in-depth discussion by the OEWGA at its 8th session in 2017 were:
  - a. equality and non-discrimination
  - b. violence, neglect, and abuse

  Member States, National Human Rights Institutes and NGOs were requested to submit inputs for those discussions, on the basis of specific guiding questions. Syntheses of the submissions were prepared by the Secretariat (UN/DESA/Programme on Ageing Unit and OHCHR). Panelists were invited to discuss the issues.

- 2017 At the 8th session, it was decided that the two focus areas for discussion by the OEWGA at its 9th session would be:
  - a. Autonomy and independence
  - b. long-term and palliative care
It was also decided at that session that in addition to requesting substantive inputs for discussion, the Bureau would also call for “substantive inputs in the form of normative content for the development of a possible international standard on protection of the rights of older people to equality and non-discrimination and the right to live free from violence, neglect and abuse” for discussion.

2018 At the 9th session of the OEWGA, panelists were again invited to discuss the two selected focus areas but there was no panel convened to discuss the normative aspects of equality and non-discrimination, and violence, neglect and abuse (discussed at 8th session).

The OEWGA also decided on the next two issues to be discussed at its 10th session in 2019, namely:
- a. Social protection and social security (including social protection floors)
- b. Education, training, lifelong learning and capacity-building

At the 9th session the Chair suggested that the OEWGA consider at its next session “the possibility of concluding each session with concrete outcomes in order to capitalize on our deliberations and reflect our agreements with regard to each area affecting the enjoyment of human rights by older persons. Such outcomes could take many forms, such as agreed conclusions or decisions of the Working Group, which should be negotiated between governments and reflect any common points identified in the focus areas examined from a normative perspective.”

2019 At the 10th session, documents on the syntheses of inputs received on the two “focus areas” as well as the “Normative inputs” are:
- Social protection and social security (including social protection floors E/AC.278/2019/CRP.2).
- Normative content for the development of a possible international standard on the focus areas “autonomy and independence” and “long-term and palliative care” (E/AC.278/2019/CRP.4).

Note: As at 10 April 2019, consultations are taking place among Member States on how to address the issue of “concrete outcomes”, prior to the 10th session of the OEWGA, meeting 15-18 April 2019.
Conclusion

Protecting the rights of older people enables them to live secure, dignified lives with the ability to participate in that which they value. This report outlines the important steps that the UN and others have taken to establish the OEWGA, while also emphasizing that there is much more work to be done.

Despite the existence of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, older people are not legally recognized under international human rights laws. The next crucial step the IFA and partners must take is to advocate for a UN Convention on the rights of older people amongst member states who lack knowledge or awareness on the importance of older people to society.

Leading up and during to the IFA 15th Global Conference on Ageing "Rights Matter", the work of the OEWGA will be used to mobilize enthusiasm in a targeted and strategic way to raise the voices of older people and urge countries who are "on the edge" of supporting a Convention on the Rights of Older People.
